Hendrik Groen is the pseudonym of Dutch author and columnist Pieter van der Hoeven. Van der Hoeven was born in 1938 and worked as a journalist and editor before retiring in 2005.

The Secret Diary Of Hendrik Groen was van der Hoeven's first novel. It was an instant bestseller in the Netherlands, selling over 1 million copies. The book has since been translated into over 30 languages.

A Heartwarming and Humorous Tale

The Secret Diary Of Hendrik Groen is a heartwarming and humorous tale about an 83-year-old man named Hendrik Groen. Hendrik is a widower who lives in an old age home. He is lonely and bored, but he finds solace in writing a secret diary.

In his diary, Hendrik writes about his daily life, his thoughts and feelings, and his hopes and dreams. He writes about the other residents of the old age home, the staff, and his family. He also writes about his regrets and his fears.

Hendrik's diary is a window into the world of old age. It is a world that is often hidden from view, but it is a world that is full of life, love, and laughter.
